Art Unit: 1754

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Le Blanc or Burlingame et al in view of applicants' admitted prior art. Le Blanc and Burlingame et al both disclose a process for the production of synthesis gas by catalytic steam reforming of a hydrocarbon in parallel in an autothermal steam reformer and in a steam reformer. (See the Abstract of each reference.) The difference between the processes disclosed by Le Blanc and Burlingame et al, and that recited in applicants' claims, is that Le Blanc and Burlingame et al do not disclose that a carbon monoxide containing gas should be added to the feedstock. Applicants admit in the paragraph bridging pages 1 and 2 of the specification that with most operating conditions ATR is not able to produce the desired ratio of hydrogen to carbon monoxide of 2.0, and that a tail-gas from the Fischer-Tropsch synthesis unit, which contains carbon monoxide, is recirculated upstream of the ATR reactor. It would be obvious from applicants' admitted prior art to modify the process of either Le Blanc or Burlingame et al by passing a tail gas from a Fischer-Tropsch unit to the ATR reactor. One of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to do so, since one would want to attain the desired ratio of the contain of hydrogen to the content of carbon monoxide of approximately 2.0.

upon as discussed hereinbefore. Singh et al disclose recycling a portion of autothermal reformer effluent. (See the Abstract and col. 1, line 48 to col. 2, line 46.) It would be obvious from Singh et al to recycle a part of the effluent from the ATR unit of either Le Blanc or Burlingame et al to the ATR unit, since Singh et al discloses the advantages of such recycling in the paragraph bridging columns 1 and 2. Such effluent would contain carbon monoxide.

The specification is objected to under 37 CFR 1.74 in failing to include a Brief Description of Drawings. See MPEP 608.01 (f).

The other references are made of record for disclosing processes for producing synthesis gas by autothermal and steam reforming.
